From the Director's Desk

The annual report of CWDS for the year 2019-20, gives an overview of our activities during the academic year. As is evident from the report, CWDS activities during the period were diverse, though research remained our primary focus. Despite the small size of the faculty, we have taken up many research activities and have been able to contribute and intervene effectively. A few research projects were completed and the rest are ongoing, of which some were initiated in 2019-20. Efforts to build new collaborations and partnership continued, as these efforts have not only helped the centre to generate additional funds but also widen the areas and scope of research and other related activities. The action research project in parts of West Bengal which continued with the ongoing project on Tasar silk cultivation in Bankura supported by the Department of Sericulture came to an end in March 2020. This year, apart from research association with existing faculty projects, short research studies, either desk reviews or small empirical research work with the guidance from individual faculty members were also taken up by the Research Associates.

As has been in the past, the CWDS team was also involved in organising many workshops, conferences and seminars which ensured interaction with larger public, including academics, students and policy makers. The teaching of MPhil-Ph.D programme in collaboration with Ambedkar University Delhi continued with 13 M.Phil students and 2 Ph.D students completing their research during the academic year. The collaboration is coming to an end in August, 2020 and CWDS has to explore possibilities to continue with its teaching programmes. The Journal, Indian Journal of Gender Studies, as always, ensured contributions from scholars from diverse field, on issues covering a number of contemporary issues and debates.

As acknowledged widely by social scientists, vulnerabilities have acquired new complexities and contexts with specificities of various social groups - Dalits and adivasis, religious minorities and marginalized communities. The demands and needs of such an expanded and changing field have indeed been challenging. Fields of study and activities by CWDS though have diversified to meet these changing realities, it has been difficult to keep pace with these demands. The small size of faculty and other resource constraints and uncertainties about future funding is hampering attention to the demands and plans for expansion.

In its 40th year, the centre is at a juncture, requiring a new and expansionary strategic vision that can leverage the learnings from our experience, interactions and partnerships, in order to sustain and take forward the organisation's premier role in women studies. A discussion on these are critical and requires attention in the coming years.

CWDS acknowledges the support of ICSSR and also thank all our collaborators, partners and well-wishers. We look forward to your engagement and continued support in all our future endeavours.

Neetha N.
Acting Director

Introduction

CWDS is in its 40th year and has remained as the premier research institute for women's studies in India all along. The institute is committed to expanding the scope of gender perspectives within the social sciences, thus developing women's studies as an interdisciplinary, problem-oriented field of rigorous research and policy intervention. With rapid changes in the society and economy, the Centre's research focus has widened which is clear from our research and activities.

The broad areas of primary research studies and projects in this period has been under the following heads:

- 1) Women and Social Change which included a) Health: Medicalisation of Birth, Market based health care and its implications, b) Education: Policies and changing trends in education
- 2) Representation, Marginalisation and Identities, which included a) disability and gender, at the level of law, policy and grassroots interventions, b) Intersections of caste, class and gender in higher education, c) Experiences of discrimination and exclusion for Dalit girls and women d) minorities and citizenship
- 3) Demographic Trends and Inter-Generational Changes, which included a) Early and child marriage: Studies of the history of child marriage in India, implications of global concepts of childhood, adolescence and adulthood, b) Interlocking dynamic of education, work and marriage to approach early marriage in different high prevalence regions,
- 4) Women, Work, Migration and the Economy including a) Relationship between growth, economic processes and women's employment from a sectoral perspective, b) developing a theoretical understanding and methodologies for measuring paid and unpaid work, c) Women's labour migration: Developing an integrated gender and labour perspective on the changing landscape of laws on labour, trafficking and related policies

The Action Research project of the Centre and the partnership with peasant women completed 39 years in West Bengal.

CWDS engagement in the teaching and supervision of research continued with many students completing their research degrees:

- ❖ The M.Phil/ Ph.D programme in Women's and Gender Studies is in place since 2012 in collaboration with Ambedkar University Delhi and the collaboration agreement is till August, 2020.
- ❖ CWDS awards ICSSR Doctoral Fellowships where faculty are engaged in co-supervision

Vina Mazumdar Memorial Library (VMML) continued to be the Resource hub on diverse issues of women – economy and development policies, social issues, disability, violence, women's movements. Indian Journal of Gender Studies (A Sage Journal) remains as an active platform for publication and dissemination of new research in Women's Studies in India and elsewhere.

Partnership Building, Networking and Advocacy helped in improving capacities and intervening in some of the critical concerns of women. This included partnerships/ collaborations with:

- ❖ Women's Studies Centre's in Universities across India
- ❖ Indian Association for Women's Studies (IAWS)
- ❖ Forum for Crèches and Child Care Services (FORCES)
- ❖ International organizations such as UN Agencies
- ❖ National Level Agencies including Women's Commissions

Organisational Structure

CWDS life members, drawn from a wide community of professionals and academics, through a smaller body of elected representatives oversee the functioning of the Centre. At the end of March 2020, CWDS had 97 life members, of which 81 are women and 16 men. There are three Institutional members. The last Annual General Body Meeting of the Centre was held on 21st September, 2019.

The Centre receives financial support from the Indian Council of Social Science Research, (ICSSR) which functions as a statutory body under the supervision of the Ministry of Education. The financial support and conditions for the same are constantly monitored and reviewed at different levels and are subject to change within the framework of the broad policy environment. The institute continues to face pressures in its efforts to grow on account of financial and infrastructural issues. In recent years' efforts have been made to augment resources through project grants, which are varied and short term. However, sustaining through short term grants with a small and declining number of faculty is a challenge. The absence of core funding support and uncertainties with project funding have hampered plans for expansion be it undertaking large scale research or collaborative programmes. Space is an important constraint in the growth of CWDS. Though the centre gets applications for Visiting Faculty and Research Internships, with limited space the Centre could not so far effectively utilize these opportunities. As before, location of library in a different building far from CWDS has restricted the effective use of resources available in the library by the faculty, research staff and students. The centre also have constraints in space available for taking classes, student- teacher interactions as well as for small Seminars/Workshops/Symposiums etc.

Planning and Monitoring

The Executive Committee (EC) of the Centre, comprising of members drawn from academics and professionals, continued to provide guidance on administrative and policy matters. Three meetings of the EC and three meetings of the Finance Committee (FC) were held during 2019-20.

At present, the composition of the EC and its elected office-bearers is as follows:

Name	Title
Dr. Kumud Sharma	Chairperson
Prof. Vasanthi Raman	Vice-Chairperson
Dr. Mala Khullar	Treasurer
Prof. Renu Addlakha	Member
Prof. Jayati Ghosh	- Do -
Prof. Rajni Palriwala	- Do -
Prof. Mohan Rao	- Do -
Dr. Satish Agnihotri (Retd. IAS)	- Do -
Prof. Amita Singh	ICSSR nominee
Prof. Neetha N.	Member Secretary & Acting Director

The EC has constituted several committees to formulate guidelines and support various activities which include the Publication Advisory Committee; Women's Studies Committee; Editorial Advisory Board for the IJGS; Action Research Committee; Internal Grievance Committee and Sexual Harassment and Gender Sensitization Committee; Standing Committee on Library and Information Services and Ethics Committee for Research Projects.

In addition to the guidance of the EC and the various committees, faculty meetings are regularly held where periodic reviews of research and other activities are taken up. Six Meetings of the Faculty Committee were held during 2019-20, apart from the several meetings of the faculty members involved in the collaborative teaching programme. In addition to this regular joint meeting of faculty, various collaborative committee meetings (AUD and CWDS faculty) were regularly held as per the MoU aimed at improving co-ordination of the teaching programme.

Human Resources

There have been many changes at the faculty and staff level, with the retirement of older members. Many critical posts are vacant for a long time including the posts of Director, Administrative and Account Officers and filling up of these posts are absolutely essential for the smooth functioning of the Centre. There is a need for academic restructuring to increase the number of faculty posts to enable the centre to adequately expand its focus areas. Further, ICSSR support and conditions, because of larger policy changes, have undergone changes demanding new financial and administrative norms and practises. Restructuring administrative positions to make it relevant for the times with changing administrative and financial policies are absolutely important. Thus, revisiting the profile of sanctioned posts and staff responsibilities is an immediate requirement. The service rules which were revised by the EC in 2014 have not yet been approved by the ICSSR and this has resulted in administrative concerns. One of important challenges for CWDS at present is to retain newer entrants, with high turn-over of support staff at entry levels due to lack of parity compared to government jobs.

Financial Position

The ICSSR provides core grants for salaries and maintenance. For research and other activities and to meet the deficit in salary and maintenance, raising of additional resources is a necessity. Project grants were received from the South Asia Women's Fund, Ford Foundation, Kings College, London, NIRPDR, ILO, Rosa Luxemburg Stiftung (RLS), ICSSR and the Directorate of Textiles, (Dept. of Sericulture) during 2019-20. The VMMF and Lotika Sarkar Endowment Fund (LSEF) are held by the Centre, as part of a pool of Corpus funds. The Employees' Provident Fund and Gratuity Fund are also in place.

Research Activities

Research remained as the main activity of the Centre covering multiple themes such as violence, labour, migration, disability, education, health, representation and demographic concerns such as early marriages. Marginalization and Identities are the key overlapping concerns which are explored through diverse and rigorous perspectives and research tools, largely, qualitative micro studies and macro data sets.

Interrogating Violence against Women from the Other Side: An exploratory Study in the World of Perpetrators- supported by NHRC

Project Coordinator – Renu Addlakha

This field-based study aims to gain insights into the perceptions of male perpetrators both adults and juveniles about the reasons for their committing violence against women and girls in order to arrive at some inferences on the intersections between gender, violence, crime and social transformation. Using qualitative methodology, data was collected from the Observation Home for Boys (Sewa Kutir), the Special Home for Boys (Majnu Ka Tilla) and Tihar Jail in Delhi. The draft report completed last year was finalized with suggestions from the NHRC and submitted.

Violence against Women and Girls with Physical Disabilities in India: Understanding the Issues and Promoting Legal Empowerment – supported by South Asia Women’s Fund (SAWF)

Project Coordinator: Renu Addlakha

This was a two-year grant awarded to CWDS (June 2017-May 2019) by Women’s Fund Asia WFA (Formerly South Asia Women’s Fund). The project sought to develop a comprehensive understanding of the nature, types and extent of violence experienced by this vulnerable group in India. The project has been completed with the submission of the final report to the Women’s Fund Asia. The project involved:

- ❖ Systematic documentary database on violence against girls and women with disabilities in India culled from different domains like law, policy, media and the social sciences (particularly women and gender studies). A literature review paper has been completed.
- ❖ Empirical data on the different experiences of violence of women with disabilities through FDGs and indepth interviews in institutions and the community. 63 indepth interviews and 76 focus group discussions from Delhi, Gujarat, Rajasthan, Orissa and Uttar Pradesh were done.
- ❖ Development of a Legal Literacy Manual in consultation with disability, women rights activists and lawyers to enable girls and women with disabilities to become aware of their legal rights and confidently access justice when they feel the need to do so. A manual edited by the Project Coordinator comprising an Introduction and 14 modules written by group of 20 legal, disability and gender rights professionals was completed. It has also been translated in Hindi. Copies of the same have been shared with disability rights organisations across India.

Work on some publications from the data collected during the project is underway.

- 1) Organisation of a 3-day symposium on Socialism and the Women's Movement in India and a commemorative public lecture
- 2) Organising a series of Grassroots Comics Workshops in collaboration with Sharad Sharma of World Comics India on the theme of Women's Struggles for Equality.

The symposium was held at the India International Centre on 21-23 November, 2019 around the themes of 1) Socialism and Women's Equality in Indian Political Thought, 2) Socialists in the Women's Movement in India: Experiences, Debates, Trajectories, 3) Political Economy of Inequality: Emerging Issues for the Women's Movement, 4) Gender and Socialist Ideas in progressive cultural movements and organisations. The commemorative public lecture on 'Capitalism and Peasant Agriculture: Reflections on Some Themes of Rosa Luxemburg' was delivered by Prof. Prabhat Patnaik in the evening of 21st November.

Two Grassroots Comic Workshops on 'Women's Struggles for Equality: Epic and Everyday', were organised. The first was in collaboration with Miranda House, Delhi University, on 6-7 November, 2019, and the second in collaboration with YWCA, Delhi, on 14-15 November, 2019.

A book proposal for an edited selection of papers, drawing on the presentations made at the symposium is to be prepared in 2020.

Partnership with ARAB, Swedish Archives for Labour History to explore cross continental/Regional trends and Perspectives around the Changing Contours of Women's Work

Following up on the International Conference on “Long-term Perspectives on Homebased Work” co-organised by ARAB, CWDS and WIEGO in May 2018, the initial outline of a book proposal based on the conference papers was prepared in a meeting held at CWDS, New Delhi on 25th April, 2019 attended by Silke Neunsinger from ARAB and Indrani Mazumdar from CWDS.

The book proposal was submitted to Brill (Holland based international academic publishers), who expressed interest in bringing it out as a part of their series on Studies in Global Social History.

Editorial engagement with paper writers for revising and finalising their chapters continued over the following months. An editorial meeting was convened in Lund on 17-18 October attended by Silke Neunsinger from ARAB, Malin Nilsson from Lund University, and Indrani Mazumdar from CWDS. Jane Barrett from WIEGO was however unable to attend. By end February 2020, revised papers had mostly been finalised, and work on the main and sectional introductions for the book manuscript titled "The Factory in the Living Room: Homebased Work and Homebased Workers 1800-2018" is in process.

A meeting between Prof Indu Agnihotri and Silke Neunsinger to plan the proposed book and the related workshop scheduled in 2020 on Women's Work: A comparative and interregional perspective was held on 11th March 2020 at Stockholm. However, in view of the Corona Virus outbreak it was decided to postpone the workshop to 2021.

The coordinating team for the CWDS-ARAB collaboration is Indrani Mazumdar, Indu Agnihotri and Neetha N.

Maternity Care Provision, Medical Dominance and Healthcare Market in India, Funded by ICSSR

Project Coordinator: – Bijoya Roy

Increasingly birth is being constructed as a ‘risky event’ that requires hospital management. The present maternity care policy in India favours hospitalisation of pregnant women with the assumption that there can be emergencies and complications at any stage of pregnancy and during childbirth. Both in conversations with young mother’s and from studies it is observed that the medicalised interventions during pregnancy and childbirth is increasing in India with the institutionalisation of birthing, proliferation of new high-end technologies and unethical practices of the doctors. At the same time, we also find private acute hospitals promoting safe and painless labour couched within the discourse of risk and its technical capacity to address them. Within the ambit of medicalised maternity care, discourse of childbirth risks and commercialisation of healthcare this research study aims to map the growth and nature of maternity care market emerging in India and its various dimensions; understand how privatisation and changes in organisational structure of medical care provisioning impact the obstetric care and medicalisation process of childbirth and explore how women’s experience of pregnancy and childbirth is shaped by biomedical and risk culture.

Documentation of Successful Case Studies of Water Conservation initiatives under MGNREGS (for National Water Conclave)

Principal Investigator: Dimple Tresa Abraham

This project, commissioned by the National Institute of Rural Development and Panchayati Raj (NIRD&PR), Hyderabad involved documentation of case studies of successful water conservation works completed in the state of Uttarakhand, under the MGNREGS. As part of the documentation exercise, six works across four districts, Dehradun, Haridwar, Pauri Garhwal and Pithoragarh were selected. Based on field visits completed in July 2019, the works were evaluated with respect to positive impact on the community and on environmental sustainability. The report of the case studies was submitted to NIRD&PR, and also presented at the workshop organised at Hyderabad on 1 August 2019. During the workshop, works across all regions were presented and each reporting institute was asked to recommend with justification any work that was remarkable and hence stood out for consideration of an award. Based on the justification provided, two case studies documented by CWDS was selected by NIRD&PR and forwarded to the Ministry of Rural Development, GOI. Out of these, one case study won the national award under the gram panchayat category (hilly region) for second best initiative towards water conservation and harvesting measures. The case study had highlighted women's drudgery and hardship in drinking water collection and the how the work had alleviated some of the burden.

Ms. Anu Rani D provided the required field support.

Laws of Social Reproduction - (Collaboration with Kings College, London)

Project Coordinator – Neetha N.

The project in collaboration with Kings College, London began in August 2019 and is for a period of 3 years. The project broadly conceptualises female reproductive labour to include unpaid domestic work and labour performed by women outside of the institutional domain of marriage and for the market - sex work, erotic dancing, commercial surrogacy and paid domestic work. Prof. Prabha Kotiswaran, Kings College is the Principal investigator. The project located at CWDS has three specific components 1. Hosting 4 post-doctoral fellowships (one each on domestic workers, bar dancers, commercial surrogacy, unpaid domestic work); 2. Organising of one national seminar on social reproduction and 4 sector based workshops; and 3. Building library resources on social reproduction and legal interventions. All the post-doctoral associates were appointed and are working from October 2019. One of the scholars left the project to take up employment in the beginning of 2020.

The Care Economy in India

Engendering Change: Exploring the interlinkages between Marriage, Disability, Sexuality and Knowledge Building in India from a Women's Studies perspective (Funded by Ford Foundation)

This large project has four segments as given below:

a) Analysing Early and Child Marriage in India: The Interlocking Markets of Education, Marriage and Work

This project began in March 2018. This study examines the prevalence of early and child marriage in India from several perspectives. It offers the framework of compulsory marriage and the highly unequal intersections of work, education and marriage to analyse the changing nature of early marriage in India. It focusses in particular on three states located in the East (West Bengal), West (Rajasthan) and South (Telengana) which have had relatively high rates of prevalence compared to the all India average. During 2019-20 unit level data of the National Family Health Survey IV (2015-16) was analysed with the assistance of Dr. Srinivas Goli from the Centre for Regional Studies and Development at JNU. It is possible to analyse this data set at the district level. Field work in the three states of West Bengal, Rajasthan and Telengana was completed during the year. Detailed surveys and select interviews were conducted with young women who had married in the last ten years in both the urban locations of Kolkata, Jaipur and Hyderabad, and select rural villages in Mushirabad, SawaiMadhopur and Mahboob Nagar. The data has been inputted, cleaned and tables for further analysis have been generated. Eighty interviews per state have been transcribed and translated into English. Due to the CoVid induced lockdown in 2020, a final round of field visits that had been planned have been put on hold. The coming year will be devoted to analysis and report writing.

This project has been aided by Nidhi Mehta for data analysis and the research assistance of Nidhi Varma.

Mary E. John is leading this segment of the Project.

b) Intersectional Analysis on Disability and Sexuality

Project Coordinator: Renu Addlakha

The project seeks to build the field of ethnography of sexuality and disability from bottom up to provide authentic experiential data. Secondly, the project seeks to build bridges with the health care system in order to make it more sensitive to the needs, concerns and aspirations of persons with disabilities (PWDs). The study sites are Delhi and Maharashtra as they are leading centres of both research and activism on disability in India. The research protocols involve doing 120 interviews with women with disabilities and 60 interviews with men with disabilities in Delhi and Maharashtra. Another component of the project is 120 interviews with healthcare providers in both the states on their experiences of treating patients with disabilities of both sexes, particularly in the area of sexual and reproductive health.

Fieldwork for this project with women and men with physical disabilities in Delhi has been completed. 30 Interviews with men with disabilities and 60 interviews with women with disabilities were done. With regard to the Maharashtra segment, while 30 interviews with men with disabilities have been completed, 40 interviews with women with disabilities have been done so far in Mumbai, Amravati and Pune before the nation-wide lockdown. Another 20 interviews still need to be done.

However, the project component involving interviews with health care professionals has been stalled. Firstly, bureaucratic delays in accessing medical professionals in the public health system delayed the initiation. When necessary permissions were obtained and questionnaires were distributed to over 15 Delhi Government hospitals in Delhi, the corona virus pandemic broke out and the country went into lockdown. Only 44 questionnaires have been completed and it is unlikely that this work can be resumed either in Delhi or Maharashtra in the foreseeable future.

d) Building Capacities of Women's Studies Centres in Regional Contexts

This 3-year project (2017-2021) at CWDS (supported by Ford Foundation), was designed to provide a platform for academic exchange, and cross-fertilization of ideas among Women's Studies Centres (WSCs) in universities and colleges. It aimed at building on experience gathered over the past decades towards developing innovative approaches to strengthen Women's Studies as a discipline, with a focus on developing and guiding research in WSCs with a focus on regional contexts. The project has two components, i.e., facilitating development of regionally situated research proposals and studies by WSCs, and conducting a series of regionally focused and located workshops in collaboration with WSCs.

1. Research Studies

Eight research proposals had been finalized over the past two years, of which one was approved by the university just before the lockdown. Two WSC's have submitted their research reports. Due to delays in acquiring requisite approvals from university administrations, the institutional formalities for two proposals were completed only in November, 2019, and one only by March, 2020.

Two of the research studies were completed in 2019-20. Two were in preliminary stages of their research in March, 2020. One was to begin in March, 2020, but could not take off because of the lockdown. Five were at different stages of field work, when total lockdown due to the pandemic was implemented. The details of the projects with status are as follows:

From Memory to History (Funded by CWDS)

Project Team - Indu Agnihotri, Sanghamitra Jana Chatterjee, Madhu Shri Pandeya, Akhlak Ahmed

preserved in the library. These interviews will be made available to the users of CWDS Library for research and scholarly purpose. Under this initiative, so far 11 interviews had been conducted with experts from different parts of India including Delhi, Uttar Pradesh, Jharkhand, Orissa, Andhra Pradesh, Kerala, and also from Bangladesh and Afghanistan.

National Crèche Scheme for the Children of Working Mothers and Impact on Women in the Labour Market in India (Sponsoring Agency- ILO)

Principal Investigator - Savitri Ray/ Vasanthi Raman (Consultant)

This study has been conducted by CWDS – FORCES and carried out in two states of India viz Tamil Nadu & Madhya Pradesh, in addition, a brief case study was taken up in Delhi. The study deals with the National Crèche Scheme, its functioning and implementation and its impact on the labour force participation of women. A total of 50 NGOs, 100 crèche workers and 160 beneficiaries were selected for the quantitative research. The findings were supplemented by qualitative data in the form of Key Informant Interviews and Focussed Group Discussions.

Based on three main stakeholders', i.e., Implementing agency (NGOs) Crèche workers and Beneficiaries, the study has concluded that the quality of employment generated cannot be considered as decent work as the data has shown the informality and lack of job security involved in care work. Though the main source of funds for running the crèches came from the government the delay in the release of funds was noted as an issue. The shortage of funds along with delay in the disbursement of funds has forced many crèches to close down. The analysis of beneficiaries has shown that women, especially those belonging to historically marginalized groups, have been the single biggest beneficiary of the scheme. The beneficiaries viewed crèches as an important facility that allows women to work and sustain their livelihood. It was found that closures of NCS centers has put additional pressure on women for providing nutritious meals for their children.

The Gender of Democracy: A South Asian Comparison' (Funded by ICSSR)

Principal Investigator – Seema Kazi

This study focuses on women's political participation in four South Asian states. It moves beyond the debates on legislative quotas in governance institutions as a strategy to redress the gender imbalance. It employs a historical frame within which the constraints to women's marginalisation in politics and public life in South Asia are situated. The study foregrounds the multiple and intersecting origins of the gender gap with reference to women's political participation in South Asia. The argument here is that without taking into account the historically determined socio-cultural factors underpinning women's political marginalisation, the policy of quotas is an important yet not sufficient policy measure to redress the gender gap in South Asia.

Schedule Caste Girls and Access to Higher Education: Exploring their Experiences in Natural Sciences - (Funded by ICSSR)

Principal Investigator - Vandana

The research explored the experiences of Scheduled caste girls, pursuing higher education in the natural sciences. It analyses the factors, processes, and spaces that has resulted in their entry in higher education. The study explored vital research questions such as the profiles and backgrounds of scheduled caste girls who are pursuing higher education in the natural sciences, what are the facilitating factors and processes that have helped them enter into higher education and what makes their struggle to access higher education institution similar and different in comparison to Scheduled caste boys. To analyse subjective experiences of diverse research participants (such as Scheduled caste girls and boys) qualitative research methodology was considered appropriate. The data was collected through detailed interviews with Scheduled caste girls and boys who were studying in natural science disciplines from various colleges of Delhi University. The final report of the study was submitted to ICSSR in May 2020. Publications of the academic papers based on this research are in the process.

Mother's Negotiating for Daughters' (Higher) Education: Studying the Intersection of Caste, Class and Gender in Balmiki Community' (supported by CWDS)

Principal Investigator – Vandana

The idea of this research emanated from the investigators doctoral work that explored Dalit girls' journey to higher education in the discriminatory system. In the study, family emerged as one of the prominent institutions at the crucial phases of Dalit girls' lives. It differentially shaped/influenced the educational experiences of girls. Within the family, it is the male member, i.e. fathers who appeared to be influencing daughters' educational aspirations. The role of Dalit fathers was dominated in Dalit girls' narratives whereas mothers received liminal space and rare mention for their engagement in the process. They were never central to influence the agency of their daughters to pursue their interest and negotiate with caste, class and gender hierarchies. Thus, keeping in mind the void in the narratives, the study explores women's intergenerational mobility (in terms of labour, education, marriage and gender relations in the family), perception and experiences of Balmiki mothers on their daughters' education and their engagement in the process. The data collection is over and analysis and writing are in progress.

Short Projects Funded by CWDS

Analysing Policy Document as a Text: Education in Delhi

Principal Investigator – Anshu Singh

This project undertakes a critical analysis of the education policy in Delhi in the period of Aam Admi Party. The policy is deconstructed into various technical concepts that have shaped the discourse of education in the country. The documents are placed in a historical and socio-political context to point out the renovation of programmes, like learning without burden, bridge courses and others in the current policy with rigorous research based revisions. The policy also leads the path in solving the problem of budget allocation for education faced by previous governments. The review also assesses the scope of the policy in the perspective of its criticisms and the future shaped by the current pandemic.

Minor Forest Produce & Livelihood in Bankura: A Gender Analysis

Principal Investigator – Bhaswati Thakurta

This study explores the gendered dimensions of Minor Forest Produce (MFP) based livelihoods of tribal communities. Four MFP's (Mahua, Myrobalan, Kendu leaves and Bel) were selected in the three villages of southern forest division of Bankura, West Bengal for the study. The value chain of these produces were mapped and detailed discussions with women engaged in the selected produce and other members in the community were held to explore the gendering of different livelihood activities. Tribal women are mostly engaged in the gathering of the MFP's and their returns are minimal, though the market for some of the products have grown and diversified. Seasonality is also an important variable.

The socio-cultural significance of MFPs to tribal community is another aspect that the study highlights.

Women Negotiating Space & Work: A Study on Quasi-Live-In Domestic Workers in Lutyens Delhi

Principal Investigator: Dimple Tresa Abraham

This project examines the lives of ‘quasi live-in’ women domestic workers living in the attached servant quarters of Government officials’ residences in the Lutyen Delhi area. The study looked into the lives of these domestic workers whose central bargaining point for employment is not wages. Free housing is the main payment for labour services provided to the domestic worker. Based on detailed life histories of 18 domestic workers gathered, following in-depth interviews, the research focuses on access to the locality, negotiations, earnings, employment and exit conditions of these workers. In addition to free housing, other amenities such as assured water and electricity supply, intangibles particularly overall security and safety (owing to living in an upper-class locality) and vast open spaces are important considerations. The study also brings out specific challenges the workers faced and its negotiations.

Education is the Recipe for all Ailments

Principal Investigator – Gayatri Panda

The study looks into the everyday practices at home and school in the context of education. This study gives an analytical description of the present schooling regime through previous research studies. A number of questions concerning the role and importance of schooling, the trajectories of the state’s promises to provide free and inclusive elementary education, and the varied upsurge of schools with their differentiated target population will also be explored.

Action Research

Action Research Programme has now completed almost four decades. The changes in the socio-economic domains in the selected locations and the entry of a newer generation of women at the organisational level are challenges that needs critical engagement. Further, economic interventions in a project- to- project mode seems to have affected the original objectives of the programme such as organisational building and collective social interventions through economic empowerment.

Teaching Women's Studies

CWDS has been actively engaged with the teaching of Women's Studies since 1990s. To take this forward, a teaching programme was initiated in 2013 in collaboration with Ambedkar University (AUD), Delhi. This full time teaching and supervision added to the centre's profile and broadened faculty's engagement. In addition to the collaboration with AUD, CWDS faculty are engaged in designing and developing of Women's Studies courses and teaching modules in other universities and centres. Faculty also serve as resource persons in various refresher courses in several universities. Another domain of academic and scholarly engagement is the ICSSR Doctoral Fellowship Programme for PhD scholars.

AUD-CWDS Women's and Gender Studies M.Phil-PhD Programme

The 2019-2020 academic session marked the eighth year of the MPhil/PhD Women and Gender Studies teaching collaboration between Centre for Women's Development Studies (CWDS) and Ambedkar University, Delhi (AUD). The collaboration ends in August 2020. CWDS faculty, however, are to continue supervision and the fulfilment of all academic responsibilities for M.Phil and PhD students working with them.

Administrative and Financial Structure

The main administration of the M.Phil./Ph.D. programme is located within AUD which is the degree granting institution. Ambedkar University provides stipends to MPhil students in their first and second year. With the exception of the ICSSR institutional fellowships for PhD students administered by CWDS, all administrative and financial matters are the domain of AUD.

The MPhil and PhD academic programmes follow the revised UGC guidelines whereby MPhil students must complete course work and the thesis within the stipulated two-year period whereas PhD students are to complete coursework and thesis submission within a period of five years. The course includes a core compulsory component together with a basket of electives in order to ensure flexibility and interdisciplinary approaches.

Ph.D. Programme

In the absence of any ONCT SC/ST candidate, a total of 9 students were admitted to the PhD programme in 2019. One student dropped out. Presently there are eight PhD students. Three PhD students who had already successfully completed the CWDS-AUD M.Phil course including thesis submission were not required to take the core Feminist Theory course. All PhD students were required to take the Guided Study course.

Fifteen fellows out of the 31 were from the CWDS-AUD Collaborative Research Programme in Women and Gender Studies while sixteen scholars were from other universities.

All scholars submitted bi-annual reports that were evaluated by an Evaluation Committee on the basis of which recommendations were made to ICSSR for continuation of the ICSSR Doctoral Fellowship for those candidates whose work was found to be satisfactory.

In 2019-20 three candidates were selected for the ICSSR Doctoral Fellowships Award Programme.

The fellowship programme is coordinated by Dr. Seema Kazi.

Interns and Scholars affiliated to CWDS

Ms. Barathi Nakkeeran, a student of MA in Women's and Gender Studies, from Ambedkar University, New Delhi, worked on the project titled "An Intersectional Analysis on Disability and Sexuality" under the guidance of Dr. Renu Addlakha from 9th May, 2019 to 9th June 2019.

Policy Perspectives'/ Advocacy and Networking

Engagement with policy makers and networking with like-minded institutions, both academic and women's/social organisations have been an important part of CWDS activities over the last four decades. Collaboration with the Indian Association of Women Studies for the National Conference and advocacy for child care issues through the Forces network located at CWDS are the two important activities taken up in this period.

National Campaign on Child care:

FORCES network has been involved in advocating the issue of child care. Members of FORCES were also part of election campaigns in the last general election and conducted meetings and workshops at regional levels with different stakeholders. In this direction, two state level workshops were also planned in the reporting period (in Delhi & Lucknow) but due to Covid-19, workshops and all community based ground activities had to be postponed /deferred.

A brief advocacy note on child care is being prepared for state members to dialogue with respective governments and other stakeholders.

Quality Child care campaign in India

Child care is even more relevant today as a global issue due to the demographic dividend, declining female labour force participation, rapid urbanization and migration, and the rise of nuclear families. Child care is an essential part of social protection for the working poor – the lack of full day, high quality childcare is often one of the reasons that women seek and remain in temporary and low-income livelihoods. The campaign is a multi-agency, nation-wide campaign with focus on certain states, with a central Steering Committee that determines the roadmap and track progress for key elements such as research, mobilization, communication, and fundraising.

The overarching objective of the campaign is to advocate for quality public child care as a right for all.

The communications strategy for the campaign aims to:

- ❖ Raise awareness about and build support for the campaign with key stakeholders at the national and state levels
- ❖ Support the delivery of campaign moments and tasks during the year, aligned with the key demands

Proactive communications were taken up with a) Government of India (Centre and states); b) Niti Aayog; c) Funding agencies working on Child rights especially on ECCD; d) Trade Unions; e) NGOs/ Networks; f) Political parties and Elected representatives; g) Forces

State partner organizations; h) Women's groups (SHGs, Federations etc.) and i) Media: print, electronic and online news portals (these will be seen as audiences, but also channels of communications to reach key stakeholders). In this initiative, the network has been closely working with Save the Children and SEWA/ WIEGO.

Apart from these two Campaigns, two Steering committee meetings were held to discuss the above mentioned strategy and Delhi- Lucknow workshops. Further, a summary report on the “Implementation of the NCS and its Impact on Women” was prepared for evidence based advocacy in the next phase.

Indian Association for Women’s Studies (IAWS)

Apart from the collaboration between CWDS, IAWS, and NLUD in the organisation of the CVI National Conference of IAWS in January 2020 (detailed write up is given later under workshops), the financial office of IAWS continued to be housed in CWDS in 2019-20, for which CWDS has been providing institutional support.

During 2019-20, Indrani Mazumdar, as the outgoing General Secretary continued as ex-officio member of the Executive Committee Member of IAWS. She was associated with representations by IAWS to the UGC regarding issues related to the UGC supported Women’s Studies Centres in Universities and Colleges, and also with the IAWS project for development of women’s studies in Jharkhand.

IAWS EC has requested that the director or nominee of the director, CWDS to be an ex-officio member of the Finance Committee of IAWS.

Seminars/Workshops/Conferences/ Dialogues

Organising seminars, workshops and conferences is an important way to interact with a larger pool of researchers, students, activists and policy makers providing newer directions to our work. This year a number of conferences/seminars and workshops were held on diverse themes and many of these were through collaborations/partnerships. Efforts to reach out to a larger pool of scholars by holding discussions in Hindi medium though continued, efforts are required to mainstream and integrate these into our regular activities.

As part of the commemoration of Rosa Luxemburg in the centenary year of her martyrdom, a three-day symposium on Socialism and the Women’s Movement was organized at India International Centre, New Delhi on 21-23 November, 2019, with the support of the Rosa Luxemburg Foundation.

The symposium aimed at initiating a debate on the wide range of socialist perspectives in Indian political thought and in the Indian women’s movement. ❖ Grassroots Comic Workshops on 'Women's Struggles for Equality, Epic and Everyday', in collaboration with Miranda House on 22-23 October, 2019 and in collaboration with YWCA, Delhi, on 14-15 November, 2019.

Two experimental grassroots comics workshops were organised around the theme of women's struggles for equality. The workshops were facilitated by Sharad Sharma, architect of the idea of grassroots comics and supported by Rosa Luxemburg Stiftung. The workshops were organised in collaboration with Miranda House (MH) and YWCA of Delhi and with the support of the principal of Miranda House, Bijayalaxmi Nanda, and Ms Abha Ekka, General Secretary, YWCA of Delhi.

The grassroots comics workshop is a novel mode of facilitating creative expression in the form of comics by people without any professional background in art or artistic training. The idea of grassroots comics is perhaps most aptly expressed in the slogan coined by Sharad, namely 'Any Body can Draw' (The ABCD of Grassroots Comics). The workshop process was thus not based on simply imparting or acquiring drawing skills, but rather focused on the composing of an idea - a story – by each participant, who was then asked to visualise the story in a few frames so as to bring out the idea or argument of the author.

The first workshop focused on students, and was organized at Miranda House (MH) College on 22-23 October, 2019, with primarily undergraduates as participants. Student participants were thus drawn not only from MH, but also from some other colleges in Delhi University, and not just girls. 39 students expressed an interest in participating and registered for the workshop. 20 were able to attend the full two days, each composing a comic.

The second workshop was held on 14-15 November, 2019 at YWCA, Delhi, and aimed at drawing a somewhat less homogenous and wider spectrum of participants. It therefore included a few activists from women's organizations, staff and sub-staff in offices, vocational trainers, researchers, and of course students, albeit more drawn from post-graduate studies. The class and age profile of the second workshop was thus more mixed. Of the 26 who registered for the second workshop, 24 were able to complete the course of two days, again each composing a comic.

44 comics were created in these workshops, 19 in English, 14 in Hindi, and 6 others combined English and Hindi, while there is one comic each in Bengali, Urdu, and Punjabi.

The comics composed during the workshops, were compiled and presented under thematic heads, and have been published as a book that includes section introductions reflecting the discussions that took place around each of the ideas in the comics.

She highlighted that the event to commemorate Vina Mazumdar’s contribution to women’s studies is on a subject that was close to Vinadi’s heart - rural women. Dr. Kumud Sharma, Chairperson of the Centre gave a brief on various activities of the Centre. She spoke on the genesis and development of the Bankura project, and how Vinadi was instrumental in addressing the vicious cycle of seasonal migration and poverty of tribal women through the project which continue to impact lives.

Prof. Indu Agnihotri introducing the theme of the workshop shared the idea behind the research scholars’ workshop which is to provide young students a platform to present their ongoing work and receive comments. She highlighted the importance of 1970s, when scholars like Ester Boserup and Vina Mazumdar had made strong arguments towards integrating women and recognizing their economic and social contribution in development debates. Prof. Jodhka in his lecture pointed to many aspects that are central to researching the rural, including methodology, normative of science and advocacy & policy. Categories, identities, and context which influenced and determined research in social sciences was also detailed out in his address. Prof. Rajeshwari Raina spoke of her experiences and engagement with gender issues particularly on women’s work in the changing agriculture world of farm mechanization and high value exports. She highlighted the question of sustainability including that of energy and water use in agriculture and suggested that women’s engagement in agricultural sector needed further research, and that young scholars should consider taking these up issues.

After the introductory session, paper presentations of the scholars began after a brief tea break. The scholars presented 13 papers over six sessions, each dealing with a broad theme. These were, (1) Rural Women’s Work in Contemporary Times (2) Education, Gender and Rural Change (3) Socio-environmental Contexts and Gender (4) Negotiating Patriarchy – Role of Women’s Collectives/SHGs (5) Women’s Role in Agriculture and Land Rights (specific context of Assam) and (6) Socioeconomic Context - Rural and Tribal Communities.

❖ Workshop on “Women’s Labour Migration in India”, IHC, New Delhi, 30 June -1 July, 2019.

A one and a half day workshop on Women’s Work and Migration in India was held at India Habitat Centre, Lodhi Road, New Delhi, on 30th June and at the CWDS office on 1st July. The workshop was divided into five sessions namely, 1) Sectoral Perspectives, 2) Agrarian Crisis & Rural Distress, 3) Law & Legal Protection, 4) The Macro Context, 5) Follow up and the way forward. In the workshop, a set of working papers written for the Action Research Project on Women’s Labour Migration at CWDS were presented. The project and the workshop were supported by WiF/ILO.

Introducing the workshop, Indrani Mazumdar pointed out that the perspectives in the papers represented a range of views, not all of which were in agreement with each other, and that such an engagement with a variety of opinions is one of the first principles for opening up the field of action research. Igor Bosc, Chief Technical Adviser of the WiF Programme, said that he hoped that the discussions in the workshop would shed light on the various types of women’s work that often get left out of the overall narrative.

Chaired by Ritu Dewan and Nalini Nayak, papers presented in the session on sectoral perspectives included ‘Nurses in India: Migration, Precarious Employment Conditions’ by Maya John, ‘Domestic Workers in India’ by Kiran Moghe, ‘Women workers in the export ready-made garments industry’ by Supriya Roychowdhury, ‘Workers in the Construction Industry: Working Conditions of Women Workers and the Effectiveness of Legal Aid’ by K. Chaitanya, ‘Women Migrants in the Brick Kiln Industry’ by Sudhir Katiyar, and The Price of Tea: Women workers’ Predicament in North Bengal Tea Plantations by Rinju Rasaily. Shobhana Warrier’s paper ‘Regimes of work in textile and garment industry in India’ was presented in absentia by Indu Agnihotri.

Two papers were presented in the session on Agrarian Crisis & Rural Distress chaired by Malini Bhattacharya. Jaideep Hardikar’s paper ‘Agrarian Crisis, Women and Seasonal Migration’ was presented in absentia by Ashmita. Dimple Tresa Abraham presented ‘Gender Dimensions in Migration and a Public Works Programme’.

In the session on Law & Legal Protection, chaired by Sumangala Damodaran, Justice Chandru presented on ‘Migrant Workers and Law in India’, and Jasoon Chelat on ‘Trafficking and Migration: Legal Challenges’.

In the session on The Macro Context, chaired by Virginius Xaxa, Neetha N presented on ‘Macro-Data Analysis of Women’s Employment and Migration’ Satyaki Roy and Sona Mitra on ‘Political Economy of New Labour Regime: Focus on Women Labour in India’, and Indrani Mazumdar on ‘Women Migrant Workers in Indian Policy Perspectives’.

In the final session on the way forward, chaired by Indu Agnihotri, it was decided that the papers presented a rich set of studies that should be brought out as a book publication, for which some clarification was required as to what was permissible if the ILO was going to publish some of the papers. It was suggested that the question of the relationship between migrants and non-migrants was an area for future action research, and additional questions regarding aggressive posturing by employers including new elements of cartelization vis-à-vis labour needed attention. Suggestions for future strategies emphasized discussions with trade unions and women’s organisations to bring about a wider engagement with issues of migration and gender.

Publications

Publications and Faculty Participation

Indian Journal of Gender Studies:

The issue of June 2019 was a double one, combining 26:1 and 26:2 (February and June) and it was special number focusing on Narratives of Bodily Functions. Dr Kamini Prakash was guest editor for this issue. Contributions focussed on women's access to toilets, problems associated with open defecation, menstrual health management in disaster situations such as floods, discrimination against menstruating women, how poor women manage menstruation and so on. This issue also included personal narratives and reviews of films dealing with the hardly publicised themes of toilets and menstruation. In this issue alongside the full length articles we carried review article on a classic text, book reviews and the ever-useful section on new resources. As we were going to press, the #MeToo movement had accelerated and we reproduced two newspaper articles to refresh our collective memories on the landmark Vishakha judgement.

In the third issue of October 2019 (26:3) contributors focused on piquant situations and dilemmas. An article looked at disability as viewed through a particular literary text while other contributors re-visited well-established areas of research and interest – the persistence of veiling, of the ghunghat and of co-education and how it plays out in varied socio-cultural milieus.

Indian Journal of Gender Studies also crosses geographic boundaries, taking readers to distant shores and different cultural spaces. In this issue, it also looked at the situation of women in refugee camps in the Middle East and also at religious marriage rules and prohibitions among the Jews of Israel – both unusual topics that were well-analysed by foreign scholars.

Our first issue of February 2020 (27:1) discussed familiar themes in new contexts - harassment, disadvantage and loss of rights. Articles threw light on the incidence of these occurrences in three different countries. An article from Israel focussed on religious marriage rules that prohibit unions between members of the ten hierarchical pedigrees into which Jews are classified. While an article listed the myriad ways in which lower-caste young women in India experience harassment on the basis of caste as well as gender in a university setting, another paper explored the implications of street harassment of women victims in Islamabad, Pakistan and how they are affected.

Much has also been written on group action by women in rural areas. We carried a paper that applies the theory of Community of Practice to understand informal community action led by rural women, while a related issue is discussed in another article that shows how, using pragmatic ways to bridge divisions in perspectives, development professionals engage with different systems of knowledge in their study of gender. A reflective opinion piece on metropolitan feminisms of Indian middle-class and a photo essay on an incident – the Nirbhaya case - that shook the country a few winters back, provided food for thought. Book reviews not only dealt with current topics but opened up the worlds of the past: two books celebrated eminent women who lived in another time in the subcontinent, others discuss the issue of surrogacy and the unhappy position of rural child carers employed by the government.

Information on new resources and book reviews continue to be the regular features of each issue of IJGS.

CWDS Calendar

From 2001, the year we held Re-presenting Indian Women - A Visual Documentary 1875-1947 at the IIC Annexe Art Gallery, we have been bringing out a calendar based on archival photographs of women. CWDS' 2020 calendar. 'A Fistful of Salt...' commemorated 90 years of the Dandi Salt March. On April 6, 1920, Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi lifted a fistful of clayey mud embedded with salt crystals from the sea at Dandi on the Gujarat coast, thus violating the laws of British India. The Mahatma had initially been ambivalent about women's participation in what could become a difficult protest. However, as our rare archival images show, women leaders and countless others, soon joined the protest that extended over several months.

Garnering photographs was not easy and our best sources were the newspapers – The Free Press journal and the Bombay Chronicle. As we scoured several volumes of cutting at the National Gandhi Museum, it was clear that we would have to do more than a bit of detective work in placing individuals in contexts: many critical photographs did not have place names or dates and we have tried to choose our images to be as representative as possible.

CWDS hopes to continue with the calendar project though acquiring archival photographs is proving to be increasingly difficult.

During this period the Centre received financial assistance from the International Labour Organisation to support the Action Research Project of the Centre in West Bengal and Punjab.

In 1984-85, the Centre became one of the Research Institutes supported by the Indian Council of Social Science Research and from then on has been receiving an annual maintenance grant. In the period between 1980-2008, the Centre was also able to raise several project grants for Research, Action Research, Library and Information Services, Seminar, Workshops, including special assignments from the UN agencies. In 1993-94, the Centre negotiated an Institutional grant from the HIVOS (The Humanistic Institute for Co-operation with Developing Countries, Netherlands) which was extended up to September 2008. At the instance of the Centre, HIVOS granted a “no-cost” extension upto 31 March 2011 for utilization of ‘unspent balance’ as per terms of the existing grant. In April 2002, the Centre received an Endowment Grant of $750,000 from the Ford Foundation for the promotion of research and development on women.

During the year 2019-20 the Centre received Rs.440 lakhs (Rs.390 lakhs OH-36 and Rs.50 lakhs OH-31) as Maintenance and Development Grant from the ICSSR. An amount of Rs.359.82 lakhs was received from various sources as grants for projects, conference/seminars, advocacy/networking and library services. An amount of Rs.144.64 lakhs was derived from the Centre’s own resources – such as interest income, membership fee, royalty, institutional overheads, miscellaneous receipts etc. The Centre also raised Rs.75.55 lakhs towards salary component from projects.
